Offshore wind farms are groups of wind turbines constructed on platforms on water to generate electricity from the wind over the sea or ocean.

- More electricity is supplied from offshore wind farms than in land
- "Better wind speeds are available offshore compared to on land..."[3]